

4 Advantages of Overhead Garage Doors

With many options for colors, styles, and add-ons, you might find it difficult to choose the right garage doors for your commercial property. If you're looking for increased energy efficiency and protection, however, you'll realize that overhead garage doors are the greatest of the bunch.

What are Overhead Garage Doors?

Overhead garage doors are available in two types. Sectional garage doors feature a set of panels connected by fasteners.

When you open these doors, the sections will roll up into the garage's ceiling area. Sectional garage doors offer excellent wind resistance and thermal performance.

You might prefer the traditional tilt-up option, which features a large frame panel and lateral springs that lift the entire door above the garage and driveway. Tilt-up garage doors are common in customized doors, like wooden ones with ornate designs.

Reasons to Choose Overhead Garage Doors

Automatic Garage Door Company carries high quality overhead garage doors from Wayne Dalton that can enhance the overall look and feel of your commercial property. Their rewarding features include:

- 1. Superior Weather Resistance — Made from durable, scratch-resistant materials, our overhead garage doors can take on extreme weather conditions. With their airtight seal, neither wind nor rain can infiltrate these doors and subject your garage to cold and moisture.
- 2. Increased Energy Efficiency — Overhead garage doors can provide greater insulation than other door types. These can prevent costly energy from leaking out of your interiors while maintaining its thermal stability. Because of this, you can enjoy considerable energy savings in your commercial building.
- 3. Excellent Security — Our overhead garage doors are easy to install and feature advanced measures that keep security threats at bay. These also come with safety features that allow for smooth and secure operation.
- 4. Enhanced Looks — You'll have your choice from different colors, finishes, and window styles that can complement and further improve the look of your commercial building.